science a four thousand year history rewrites science s past instead of focussing on difficult experiments and abstract theories patricia fara shows how science has always belonged to the practical world of war politics and business rather than glorifying scientists as idealized heroes she tells true stories about real people men and some women who needed to earn their living who made mistakes and who trampled down their rivals in their quest for success fara sweeps through the centuries from ancient babylon right up to the latest hi tech experiments in genetics and particle physics illuminating the financial interests imperial ambitions and publishing enterprises that have made science the powerful global phenomenon that it is today she also ranges internationally illustrating the importance of scientific projects based around the world from china to the islamic empire as well as the more familiar tale of science in europe from copernicus to charles darwin and beyond above all this four thousand year history challenges scientific supremacy arguing controversially that science is successful not because it is always right but because people have said that it is right beginning with 1915 the abstracts of decisions of the united states customs court are included the language of the bible has no inconsiderable influence in forming and preserving our national language on this account the language of the common version ought to be correct in grammatical construction and in the use of appropriate words this is the more important as men who are accustomed to read the bible with veneration are apt to contract a predilection for its phraseology and thus to become attached to phrases which are quaint or obsolete this may be a real misfortune for the use of words and phrases when they have ceased to be part of the living language and appear odd or singular impairs the purity of the language and is apt to create a disrelish for it in those who have not by long practice contracted a like predilection it may require some effort to subdue this predilection but it may be done and for the sake of the rising generation it is desirable the language of the scriptures ought to be pure chaste simple and perspicuous free from any words or phrases which may excite observation by their singularity and neither debased by vulgarisms nor tricked out with the ornaments of affected elegance noah webster 1833
